Faculties and Research Fields

Founded in 1996, the USI Università della Svizzera italiana is a member of the Swiss university system together with nine other cantonal universities and two Federal Institutes of Technology, Zurich and Lausanne. It is the only Italian-speaking university in Switzerland and outside the Italian borders. With its four Faculties (Architecture, Communication Sciences, Economics and Informatics), USI is recognised as an interdisciplinary and multilingual University. The institute for research in Biomedicine (IRB, Bellinzona) has been affiliated to USI since 2010. The official language is Italian, but English is the second working language, used in the Faculty of Informatics, in many of the Master's programmes, in the Graduate Schools, as well as in the research centres.

Through a network of teaching and research agreements and partnerships with sister Swiss universities and with major universities in Northern Italy, USI has established a virtual academic bridge between Northern and Southern Europe, paving the way for inter-university Master courses, cross-border doctoral schools and research projects, notably with the Institutes of Technology of Milan and Zurich. The development of research in the sectors of urban project, finance, healthcare communication, health economics, distance teaching and in several sectors of Informatics, has considerably boosted the number of postgraduates (currently over 100) as well as funding for Swiss and European projects. USI's contained size, the integration of different disciplines and top-quality technical and IT infrastructure make up the ideal conditions for research and study.

The University Campuses

USI has two campuses, one in Lugano housing the Faculties of Communication Sciences, of Economics and of Informatics; the other in Mendrisio a little market town less than ten miles to the south of Lugano, close to the Italian border which houses the Academy of Architecture. Both are located centrally and within easy access of public transport and municipal services, with shopping facilities and entertainment close to hand.

The Lugano Campus

Located near the centre of town, the Lugano Campus developed around the old building which originally hosted the city hospital and is now completely renovated. Today it accommodates the University's central administrative offices, academic staff rooms, research centres, classrooms, computer laboratories, a canteen, and dedicated study space.

Other units were erected around the original main building: in particular, the Library, a conference hall (Aula magna), a classroom building with a total seating capacity of approximately 1.000, the Informatics building, and a building called technological laboratory (LAB) entirely devoted to research.

By car

A2 Motorway: exit Lugano Nord, follow the direction “Lugano-Gandria” to the Vedeggio Cassarate Tunnel. Exit the tunnel and keep going straight till you reach a crossroad (the stadium is in front of you) turn right at the crossroad onto via alla Bozzoreda. Keep the right lane and turn right at the traffic light onto via Ciani. Keep going straight following the river Cassarate. The underground University parking lot is passed the second traffic light after the Glass Building (The Lab) on your right. If you need to reach the University entrance instead, keep going straight passed the parking lot entrance and turn second right onto via Fusoni. Turn second right onto Via Lambertenghi and keep going straight till the end of the road until you see the University main building in front of you.

Parking facilities: Please be aware that parking is not easy in the neighbourhood of our campus. The blue parking zone requires a parking disk (max. 1 hour), while the ‘white’ designated spaces are available on payment. The underground car park has limited parking facilities and is on payment.

By train – bus

By bus from the train station: go to the bus stop across the street from the train station and take the bus 6 direction “Cornaredo” and get off at “Università” (3 stops). You can also take the funicular down to the centre of town and then take a bus from downtown.

By bus from downtown Lugano: From the bus terminal on Via Pretorio take the bus 5 direction “Viganello” and get off at “Università” (3 stops) .

Train and bus schedules are available online at www.ffs.ch.

By air

Located in Agno (about 6 km from Lugano town centre), Lugano-Airport offers direct-flight connections to four main Swiss cities and some European cities (www.lugano-airport.ch). Also, Milano-Malpensa Airport, some 60 km away, may be easily reached by shuttle bus (www.sea-aeroportimilano.it).

The closest Swiss airport with international connections is Zurich Kloten, three hours away by train (www.zurich-airport.com).

The Mendrisio Campus

The USI Campus in Mendrisio hosts the Academy of Architecture. It consists of three main existing buildings: Villa Argentina, a neo-classical villa surrounded by a century-old park where the offices of the administration are located; Palazzo Turconi, formerly the town hospital, entirely renovated and modernised into a building capable of housing classrooms, laboratories and workshops; Palazzo Canavée, a new block housing the design ateliers and administrative offices. Next to these three buildings the campus comprises: the Library, originally a multi-purpose conference hall designed by Mario Botta, and the Archive of the Modern.

Public transportation ensures fast connections from Mendrisio to Lugano and Milan.

Facts about Switzerland and Svizzera italiana

Switzerland

Thanks to its location (landlocked by France, Germany, Liechtenstein, Austria and Italy), Switzerland has traditionally been and will continue to be at the crossroads of major international trade routes. From Switzerland you can reach many major European cities in two hours or less.

With its population of 380,500, Zurich is the business hub of Switzerland and one of its three main financial centres. Bern (129,000 inhabitants) is the political capital; Basel (160,000 inhabitants) is home to renowned pharmaceutical and chemical companies; and Geneva (186,000 inhabitants) is the headquarters of numerous international organizations.

With its small population (7.952 million people), Switzerland has four national languages: 65% of the population speak Swiss German, a strong dialect of German; 22% speak French; 12% Italian, and 1% Romansch, a minority language spoken only in Canton Grisons.

The Swiss Confederation is based on a federal system. Its present form was established by the 1848 Constitution. An historically evolved federal structure gives each of its 26 Cantons a considerable degree of political freedom and administrative independence. While Switzerland is not a member of the European Union (EU) it is economically and culturally integrated with it. In 2002, Switzerland became a member of the United Nations.

Switzerland's famous mountain ranges largely determine the variety of local and regional microclimates. In the South, Ticino enjoys a hot, Mediterranean climate, but the rest of the country mostly has a central European climate, with average temperatures typically in the low- to mid 20°C in the Summer, and between 2° and 6°C in Winter.

Svizzera italiana

That part of the Swiss Confederation which lies entirely south of the Alps is known as "Svizzera italiana", Switzerland's Italian-speaking region. It comprises the whole of Canton Ticino and four valleys of Canton Grisons (namely Mesolcina, Calanca, Bregaglia and Poschiavo) for a total population of just over 320,000. Lugano is the main city: it forms a conurbation of more than 57,000 inhabitants and is the third financial centre in Switzerland after Zurich and Geneva. Other towns worth mentioning are: Bellinzona (the seat of Canton Ticino's government), Locarno, Mendrisio and Chiasso.

Italian is the official language for the whole region: it is spoken by its local residents and used in all forms of official communication in the public sphere and administration. Most local people are to some degree conversant with French and/or German, rather less with English. Italophone Switzerland blends cultural components that are typically Italian with a tradition of politics and administration that is unmistakably Swiss. Ticino has experienced a great expansion in tourism; and has fully integrated its role as a rail and road axis between North and South. The combination of these two factors has made Ticino a region open and receptive to different influences and able to act as a genuine bridge linking central Europe to the Mediterranean area.

Some of its attractive features and opportunities worth highlighting include: a rich selection of cultural events, a natural landscape of moving beauty characterized by its lakes (Lugano and Locarno are the main lakeside towns), but also for its mountains (good ski resorts for winter sports); and a temperate and sunny climate.

Visa and Permits

Foreign researchers working at USI must apply for a residence permit to the Office of Foreigners (Servizio regionale degli stranieri) and, within 8 days from their arrival in Switzerland, register with the Inhabitants Control (Ufficio controllo abitanti).

Foreign researchers not from EU/EFTA countries must also apply for a visa to the Swiss embassy or consulate in their home country prior to entering Switzerland (visa application process: 8 to 10 weeks).

Insurances

Health insurance

All those who reside in Switzerland are required by law to be insured by a recognized Swiss health insurance company, providing at least basic coverage for medical care in case of illness or accident. Foreign scholars living in Switzerland for a period not exceeding 12 months may be exempted from this obligation if they can prove they are covered by an equivalent insurance in their home country.

More information on health insurance and exemption request forms can be found at www.usi.ch/healthinsurance

Swiss health insurance

If you do not qualify for an exemption, or if your insurance coverage is not valid in Switzerland, you must purchase a Swiss private insurance policy. All recognized insurance companies offer the same basic coverage, but at different premiums, basing on your place of residence, your age and the level of deductible originally opted for.

An exhaustive list of providers and premiums may be found at www.usi.ch/healthinsurance

By paying supplementary premiums, you may obtain extra benefits not covered by the basic plan (e.g. private room in hospital, special therapies, indemnities for loss of earnings caused by illness or injury).

Premium reductions

The premium can be reduced if the insured party accepts a higher deductible (Italian: “franchigia”) or other limitations imposed by some companies.

People employed for at least 8 hours a week are covered by their employer for medical care and loss of income as a result of accidents (even if occurred outside work). By presenting a statement signed by your employer, you are granted a discount on the premium. If you stop working or reduce your weekly working hours, the full coverage must be restored.

Residents experiencing financial difficulties may apply at their town’s council office for a public subsidy to reduce the premium (does not apply to doctoral students and assistants/researchers).

Useful links

Common institution under the Federal Health Insurance Act: www.kvg.org

Federal Office for Public Health: www.bag.admin.ch

To compare premiums visit the website: www.comparis.ch

Personal liability insurance

Some lease contracts may require you to purchase a personal liability insurance, as well as a household insurance which will cover damage caused by water, burglary, or broken windows. Insurance premiums are reasonable.

For information on premiums visit www.comparis.ch

Social Security System and Income Tax

Social security in Switzerland

Switzerland has a solid and effective social insurance network, providing all its citizens who live and work here ample cover against risks whose financial consequences they may find hard to face on their own.

The Swiss social security system is organized in five sections:

1. The Swiss old-age, survivors' and disability insurance which is divided into three sectors:
 - First Pillar: old-age, survivors' and disability insurance scheme. It is the basic insurance. It is compulsory for all persons who live or work in Switzerland and covers:
 - i. Retirement (old-age pensions)
 - ii. Disability (disability pensions)
 - iii. The death of the spouse or parent (survivor's pensions)It is run by compensation offices.
 - Second pillar (compulsory only for citizens on a regular and fixed income in Switzerland): occupational retirement scheme. It is an occupational insurance, compulsory for all those working in Switzerland with an annual income of at least CHF 21'150.- (as per 1.1.2015). It is run by the retirement funds the employer is affiliated to.
 - Third Pillar (optional): Individual retirement account, savings scheme on a fixed deposit account, subject to tax relief (available exclusively to Swiss residents)
2. Protection against the consequences of a disease or accident
3. Income compensation allowances in case of military and civil service, and in case of maternity
4. Unemployment insurance
5. Family allowances

The insurance cover provided by these insurance plans consists in the payment of benefits such as annuities, compensation for loss of earnings or family allowances, or in the reimbursement of expenses caused by disease or accident.

The benefits paid out by the various insurance branches are funded primarily on the basis of social security contributions deducted from salary. In the case of health insurance policies, on the other hand, each policy holder pays his/her own premium.

For more information on the Swiss social security system visit the website of the Federal Social Insurance Office:

List of Acronyms

AVS: Assicurazione Vecchiaia e Superstiti (Old Age and Survivor's Insurance)

AI: Assicurazione Invalidità (Disability Insurance)

IPG: Indennità per Perdita di Guadagno (Income Compensation)

AD: Assicurazione Disoccupazione (Unemployment Insurance)

AINP: Assicurazione contro gli infortuni non professionali (Non professional accident insurance)

Social contributions and tax levied at source

Social contributions

AVS/AI/IPG: 5.15%

AD: 1.1%

AINP: 0.647%

Tax levied at source

Contracts at USI envisage the withholding of Swiss income tax for foreign assistants and researchers (please see the terms of your contract). The tax rate is set by the Inland Revenue Office of Canton Ticino taking into account the employee's salary and personal situation. An official tax certificate issued in Italian by the Inland Revenue Office of the Canton Ticino is handed in within end of February of the following year. The Human resources unit is providing an English version upon request. For non-residents in Switzerland coming from double taxation treaty countries the Swiss income is also subject to Swiss tax. Double taxation is avoided by producing the tax certificate to the revenue authorities of the Faculty member's home country. The amount withdraw at source in Switzerland is then deducted from the total of the researcher's revenue taxes.

All deductions (social contributions and income tax collected at source) are to be considered as permanent and therefore nonrefundable.

Cost of Living

Year by year statistics show that Switzerland is one of the most expensive countries in the world. Prices are particularly high for consumer goods, housing and health insurance. Swiss wages take into account this and accordingly Switzerland has one of the highest salary average.

Private / Independent schools

In addition to public schools, in Ticino there are several privately run schools. Some of them may use English as their language of instruction.

Family Welfare

Crèches, child-care and extra-school facilities

USI does not run nursery services of its own, but relies instead on existing childcare facilities in the Canton recognised or authorised by Ticino's Department of Health and Social Services. Access to nursery care is facilitated for small children of USI staff by reserving places for them in crèches of Lugano and Mendrisio within easy distance of the University campuses. Besides, USI's Equal Opportunities Service has come forward with a special programme for families of limited economic means with small children. The point of the scheme is to provide financial assistance for any member of staff seeking a day-care centre for their children.

USI also provides any interested members of staff dedicated space for child-care at the Lugano and Mendrisio campuses. For information please visit www.equality.usi.ch/en/asili-nido

USI also grants financial aid to members of its staff with limited means who are obliged to entrust their children (aged more than 3) to extra-school care and facilities. For information please visit www.equality.usi.ch/en/servizi-extrascolastici
